developers who use adfupdater:.Examination of self-reported physical activity among adolescents during the first months of a myopia control treatment. This study aimed to investigate the effect of the multifocal-IOL treatment on the physical activity and body mass index (BMI) of myopic schoolchildren. In total, 104,353 Chinese schoolchildren were examined for self-reported physical activity and BMI for a total of 208,592 follow-up points. The data collected after the refractive surgery were analyzed according to follow-up duration. A positive association was found between myopia and physical activity. The effectiveness of multifocal-IOL treatment was found to decrease with longer follow-up duration. High physical activity levels were shown to be protective factors for myopia in this study. The efficacy of multifocal-IOL treatment was found to increase with a longer follow-up duration. t
